6 things you should never do on vacation

Whether you're a tourist at home or abroad, impeccable and responsible behavior is always essential when you're travelling. In other words, you can't simply do whatever you want just because you're on vacation. You can be a good tourist by avoiding these common faux pas.

1. Littering. Dispose of your garbage properly, whether tissues, packaging or a water bottle. If you can't find a trash can, take your waste with you. Leave every place you visit clean and tidy, whether it's the beach, a park or a city street.

2. Neglecting your safety. Avoid taking unnecessary risks like hiking in flip-flops or kayaking without essentials, such as water or a first aid kit. If you're travelling alone, always tell someone about your itinerary. Also, know your limits and never overestimate your abilities.

Furthermore, it cannot be said enough: always take out travel insurance to cover potential mishaps like road accidents, illness or theft.

3. Acting without consideration for others. Be mindful of those around you. Speak softly in public places, keep noise to a minimum late at night and don't cut in line. Additionally, avoid occupying multiple tables when people are waiting to eat or hogging the best photo spots for too long. Give others a chance to immortalize the moment. Remember, you're not alone!

4. Defacing nature and monuments. Even if you want to take a souvenir with you, don't pick plants or collect sand. Stay on designated paths to protect the environment. It goes without saying that you should never damage monuments or exhibits in your quest for a keepsake.

5. Ignoring instructions. Although it may seem tempting to break the rules, they're in place for a reason, whether for safety, conservation or cultural respect. Avoid taking photos, feeding wildlife, touching objects and lighting campfires or eating where prohibited. Don't compromise your safety by going past security cordons for that perfect selfie.

6. Avoiding research. Educate yourself about your destination. Otherwise, you could inadvertently offend the residents or run into trouble. For example, if you plan to drive abroad, familiarize yourself with local traffic rules and road signs.

Above all, avoid criticizing customs or practices, even in private conversations. Always show respect.
